Emily P. Hyle, M.D.

“People Aging with HIV in the US: A Simulation Modeling Approach”

Tuesday, November 22, 2022
8:00 – 9:00 a.m.
Zoom

This is a Spark Lecture and qualifies for 1 DEI credit

Dr. Emily Hyle is an infectious disease physician at Massachusetts General Hospital and Associate Professor in Medicine at Harvard Medical School. Her research interests include using cost-effectiveness analysis to investigate policy-relevant questions for the clinical care of people with HIV, including aging, point-of-care technologies, virologic resistance, and non-communicable diseases among people with HIV, in the US and resource-limited settings. Dr. Hyle also collaborates with the Global TravEpiNet Consortium to investigate the cost-effectiveness of pre-travel medicine. Dr. Hyle earned her MD from the Perelman School of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, as well as a DTMH from the Gorgas Institute in Lima, Peru and an MSc in Epidemiology for the Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health.
